

The frog and the egg.

This story includes words that end with /g/.

The frog and the egg.

The frog woke up very hungry. He had had his breakfast but he was still very hungry. He really wanted an egg. There weren't any shops near where the frog lived so she went to try and find his friends, to see if they had an egg.

The first person that the frog saw was his friend, the pig. "Do you have an egg?" asked the frog. "I'm really sorry but I don't," said the pig. "Maybe the dog might have an egg," said the pig.

The frog gave the pig a hug and then, he went to see the dog.

The frog asked the dog if he had an egg.
“I did have an egg but I ate it earlier,
sorry frog!” said the dog. “Never mind,”
said the frog.

“Shall we have a mug of coffee?” asked the dog. “That would be lovely, thank you,” said the frog.

“I just need to plug the kettle in first,” said the dog. “No problem,” said the frog.

The frog drank his mug of coffee and then he said goodbye to the dog, gave him a hug and went looking for some more of his friends.

The next person that the frog saw was his friend, the big man. “Have you got an egg?” asked the frog. “Yes, I’ve got an egg in my bag. I’ve just been to the shop to buy a flag and an egg,” said the big man.

“Do you need an egg? You can have this one and I can go back to the shop and get another egg,” said the big man. “That would be so kind, but only if you don’t mind!” said the frog. “Of course I don’t mind, I’m happy to help,” said the big man and he gave the egg to the frog.

Then, the frog went home and cooked the egg. “I think I’ll have a fried egg today. My favourite type of egg is a fried egg,” he thought to himself.

The frog really enjoyed the egg. His leg was hurting because of all of the hopping that he had been doing. "I hope my leg feels better soon," he thought to himself.

The frog lay down on the rug and was very tired after hopping so far to find an egg.

“What a lovely day I’ve had today. I will go and give the big man a present tomorrow to thank him for giving me the egg. It was so kind of him to give me the only egg that he had,” thought the frog. Then, the frog fell straight to sleep.

The end.