Time for a run.

This story includes words that end with /n/.

Time for a run.
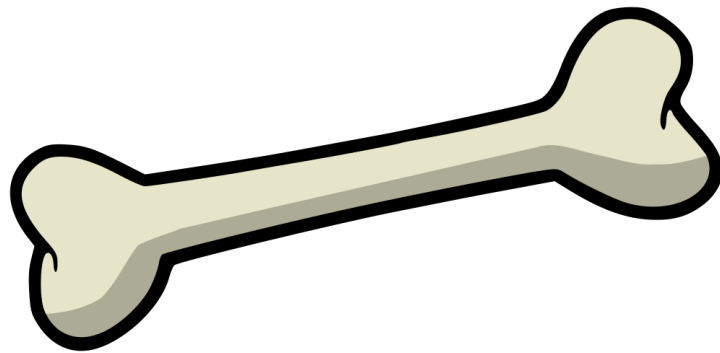

The children got up early and got ready for their run. They went on a run every day as they wanted to keep healthy. "I can't wait to go on our run today," said the boy.

It was a lovely day outside and the sun was shining. "I love running in the sun," said the boy.
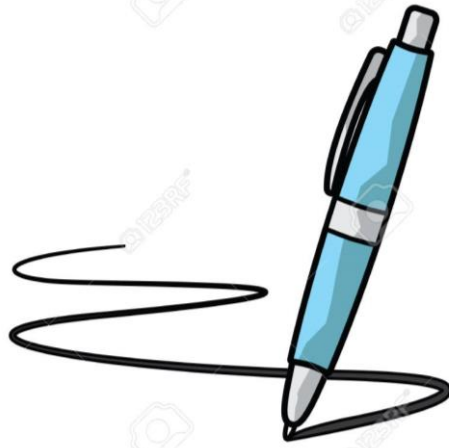

The children started running. They had been running for a while but then, the boy fell over a bone. "Ouch! Why is there a bone in the middle of the road?" he said.

"I've hurt my chin!" said the boy. The girl had a look but there weren't any marks on his chin so they kept running.

After a few minutes, the girl fell over. "Ouch! I didn't see that pen in the middle of the road!" she said.

"Now I've hurt my chin too!" she said. She got up and she was fine so they kept running.

They had been running for a very long time and they soon realised that they were lost. "I don't know where we are," said the boy. "Neither do I," said the girl. They ran past a man who was on his phone, he was saying that he was nearly at the park.

Soon, the children found a brown sign that said, 'This way to the park.' "Let's run to the park, then we will know the way home," said the girl.

As the children were running home, it started to rain. "Oh no! We need to run quicker!" they said.

Soon, the children were home. They looked out of the window and the moon was shining brightly. "What a beautiful moon, I'm glad we got home before it got dark," said the boy.

The children were so tired when they got home and it was soon time for them to go to bed. "I hope it doesn't rain on our run tomorrow," said the boy. Then, they shut their eyes and fell straight to sleep.

The end.