The clown and the clarinet.

The clown woke up early because he was so excited about his birthday. His alarm clock went off at six o'clock.

The clown put his clothes on then went downstairs.

The clown couldn't wait to open his birthday presents. The first present that he opened was a clarinet. "A clarinet!" said the clown. He had wanted a clarinet for a very long time.

The clown started playing his clarinet straight away. "I love playing this clarinet!" he thought. All of a sudden, there was a bang on the door. It was a detective looking for clues. "Please stop playing that clarinet, it's so loud that I can't concentrate on finding the clues," said the detective.

“I don’t want to stop playing it yet. I’ve only just started!” said the clown. He started playing his clarinet again and there was another knock on the door. This time, it was a clever boy. “Please stop playing that clarinet, I’m trying to learn my maths. I want to make sure that I’m really clever!” said the boy.

“I don’t want to stop playing it yet!” said the clown. The clown started playing the clarinet again and there was another knock on the door. This time, it was a cleaner. “Please stop playing that clarinet, I’m trying to clean and you’re putting me off!” said the cleaner.

“I don’t want to stop playing it yet. I’m really enjoying myself!” said the clown.

The clown was fed up of everyone complaining about his clarinet playing so he decided to go to the park. It was very cloudy but he didn’t mind.

As soon as the clown started playing his clarinet in the park, a class of school children walked past. They all started clapping. “What wonderful clarinet playing!” said the children. “How lovely, thank you. At least some people like my clarinet playing!” said the clown.

The clown played his clarinet for a while but then he became really tired. “I think it’s time for me to go home now,” thought the clown. It was very cloudy on his way home and when he got home, he played his clarinet for a little bit longer then lay down. “I can’t wait to play my clarinet again tomorrow,” he thought. Then, he fell to sleep.

The end.
