The parrot finds a fairy.

The parrot was looking forward to going out for the day. He got up early because he was so excited about going berry picking.

The parrot had such fun berry picking. He picked lots of cherries and strawberries.

Then, the parrot went to pick some blueberries and blackberries.

As the parrot was picking some blackberries, he noticed something flying inside the blackberry bush. "Hello" said the parrot. "Hello, please can you help me?" someone said. "Who are you?" asked the parrot. "I'm a fairy," replied the voice from inside the blackberry bush.

“I’m lost! I flew out of a story book and now I’m lost,” said the fairy. “Oh no! We must find your story book so that you can get home,” said the parrot.

The parrot and the fairy set off to find the story book. They walked past lots of things. First they walked past a big bowl of cereal. “I wonder if it’s under there,” they thought. The parrot and the fairy looked underneath the cereal but the story book wasn’t there.

Then, they saw a carrot. “Have you seen a story book?” they asked the carrot. “No sorry, I havent,” said the carrot so the parrot and the fairy carried on loking for the story book.

Then, the parrot and the fairy bumped into a squirrel. “Have you seen a story book?” they asked the squirrel. “Yes, I found it by the cherry bush so I kept it safe here,” said the squirrel.

“Thank you so much for looking after the story book. I live inside it and I really need to get home. Everyone will be wondering where I’ve gone!” said the fairy to the squirrel.

The fairy also thanked the parrot for helping her to find the book.

Then, the fairy flew into the story book and was safely home.

When the parrot got home, he was so tired. “What a busy day! I can’t believe I met a fairy. I wonder who I’ll meet tomorrow,” he thought. Then, he fell straight to sleep.

The end.
