

The bus driver and the gravy.

This story includes words that have /v/in the middle.

The bus driver and the gravy.

The bus driver woke up at seven o'clock and he was very hungry. He had his breakfast but he was still hungry. He really wanted some sausage and mash. He made some sausage and mash but when he looked in the cupboard, there was no gravy. There weren't any shops near where the bus driver lived so she went to see his friends, to see if they had any gravy.

It was a cold day so the bus driver put his gloves on when he was driving.

First, the bus driver saw his friend, Stephen, who was carrying a heavy stone. “Do you have any gravy?” asked the bus driver. “I’m really sorry but I’m far too busy to look for gravy!” said Stephen.

Then, the bus driver went to see his friend who was a scuba diver. “Have you got any gravy?” asked the bus driver. “Of course not, it would be all soggy in the water,” said the scuba diver. “Oh yes, that was a silly question!” said the bus driver.

Next, the bus driver went to see his friend, Sarah. Sarah was poorly and had a fever. The bus driver asked Sarah if she had any gravy. “I do! Eating good food has been really helpful for my fever. Wait a minute while I go and get it,” she said. “Thanks so much! I hope you feel better soon!” said the bus driver.

It took a long time for the bus driver to get home as he had driven so far looking for some gravy. He drove down the lanes, past the river and soon, he was home.

It was very windy and lots of leaves were blowing in front of his bus.

By the time that the bus driver got home, it was seven o'clock at night and his sausage and mash had gone cold.

The bus driver put his sausage and mash in the microwave and made some gravy. Then, he sat down with his dinner and watched some television.

Then, it was time for the bus driver to go to bed. "What a busy day. I will take something nice to Sarah tomorrow. It was very kind of her to share her gravy with me," he thought.

Then, the bus driver fell straight to sleep.

The end.
